117. A bull or heifer entered in any class for an Exhibit of an age under 18 months shall be ineligible for exhibition in any such class if at the time of inspection of the Exhibit at the Showgrounds the bull or heifer has or shows, in the opinion of the Chief Steward or their nominee, evidence of having had a permanent tooth; or if entered in any class for an Exhibit of an age under 24 months the bull or heifer has, or shows evidence of having had more than two permanent teeth. A tooth which has erupted from the gum in whole or part shall be deemed to be a permanent tooth.

118. An animal shall not be admitted to the Showgrounds unless it is entered for exhibition, with the exception of a calf at foot, as defined in Section 119 of these Regulations.

The Inspectors shall report any animal which they believe to be infected by ringworm or warts and the RASV's Veterinary Surgeon shall inspect such animal for the purpose of determining whether the animal is so infected. Any animal infected by ringworm or warts shall be deemed to be ineligible for exhibition at the Show.

130. Without prejudice to the General Regulations, the determinations of the inspectors or of the Veterinary Surgeons on any matter shall be subject only to appeal to the Chief Stewards or Assistant Chief Stewards in the Beef Cattle or Beef Carcass Competition who shall make such determinations and directions as they think fit. Any determination made by the RASV pursuant to this regulation shall be final.

133. The RASV may make or cause to be made, at any time during the period of exhibition, an inspection or any test of an Exhibit to determine whether a breach of the regulations under the heading of Standard of Exhibits and Inspections has occurred. If, as a result of a breach of any of these regulations, an animal is deemed to be ineligible for exhibition at the Show, the RASV may by notice to the Exhibitor require the animal be forthwith removed from the Showgrounds. The Exhibitor, upon receipt of such notice, shall forthwith remove such animal and, failing such removal by him within the time prescribed by the RASV, the RASV may remove the animal or cause the animal to be removed and all costs and expenses of removal shall be borne by the Exhibitor and shall be refunded to the RASV. Any determination made by the RASV pursuant to this regulation shall be final.

AUSTRALIAN BEEF CARCASS APPRAISAL SYSTEM (ABCAS)

The Australian Beef Carcass Appraisal System ranks beef carcasses on their overall merit, and gives feedback to producers about compliance to market specifications, the yield of saleable meat and the potential eating quality of the meat.

ABCAS combines the extensive experience of the NSW Department of Primary Industries in carcass judging and evaluation with the advanced technology of the world's most comprehensive grading system, Meat Standards Australia (MSA). Practices to improve and optimise meat quality have come directly from research by the Co-operative Research Centre (CRC) for Beef Quality.

ABCAS focuses on the factors that producers can control. In commercial grading, MSA accounts for many factors that affect eating quality but which the producer cannot control, such as pre-slaughter management, livestock handling, hanging method, chilling and ageing.

As far as possible, carcass competitions and educational activities should be structured in accordance with MSA grading requirements to optimise meat quality and demonstrate best practice. Please note that although ABCAS provides grading information on all carcasses, in many competitions they will not be eligible for sale as MSA-graded beef, either because they do not meet MSA licensing conditions, or because they cannot meet requirements for pre-slaughter management (e.g. no mixing of different mobs of cattle, and direct delivery from farm to abattoir).

To assess market suitability, the basic specifications of a carcass are judged for compliance against the specifications of the appropriate market category.

1. - Compliance to Market Specifications (20 points total)

Most markets require carcasses to meet basic specifications of age (dentition), sex, weight and P8 (rump) fat depth. Dentition is usually checked in the live cattle, and is not part of the carcass assessment, while some markets specify only steers.

1.1 - P8 Fat Depth (10 points) is measured on the hot carcass at the P8 site, over the rump, and is the method of describing fatness in the AUS-MEAT national carcass description language. It is commonly used to set market targets and for payment of premiums and discounts. Optimum P8 fat depth is the range set for each class (Market Category) in the carcass specifications.

1.2 - Meat Colour (5 points) is recorded using AUS-MEAT standard meat colour chips in a range of 1a (very pale) to 7 (very dark purple). Colour strongly influences consumer appeal, with bright, pinkish colours in the range 1b to 3 being most acceptable to consumers. Carcasses must meet the MSA specification of Meat colour 1b to 3 to receive eating quality points.

1.3 - Fat Distribution (5 points) Ideally, a carcass will have a thin, even fat cover over all the important cuts, especially over the rump and forward along the backline. This contributes to eating quality by slowing the chilling rate, and reduces weight loss due to dehydration as the carcass chills.

Carcasses will lose points for inadequate cover, or for heavy, wastey deposits. Key areas for assessment of excessive fat deposits are the subcutaneous fat (especially over the ribs), intermuscular (seam) fat and internal fat in the cod, udder, ribs and brisket.

1.4 - Fat Colour is recorded for your information at the end of the eating quality section but has no direct impact on eating quality; excessive yellowing or softness may affect the saleability of the carcass. Fat colour is assessed on the internal seam fat at the quartered site using the AUS-MEAT chips and ranges from 0 (bright white) to 9 (very yellow).

There are no points allocated for fat colour but individual competitions may apply penalty points (max. 5) if a carcass exceeds Fat colour 3 or if a market specification for fat colour is set.

1.5 - Penalties may be applied to carcasses that:

- fall outside the specified weight range (usually 1 point per kg outside)
- Exceed Fat colour 3 or fall outside the specified fat colour range
- Show Secondary Sexual Characteristics (bull or stag)
- Fall outside specifications for dentition
- Exhibit obvious defects, e.g. bruising, blood splash, injection site damage.

Points	Description
5	Meets minimum fat requirements with good even fat cover over entire body, without excess deposits of subcutaneous or seam fat.
4	Meets minimum fat requirements with good even cover over the butt.
3	Meets minimum fat requirements with fat cover over major primals, Cube roll, Striploin and Rump.
2	Lean carcasses or carcasses with uneven fat distribution. Also carcasses with some excess fat deposits or seam fat.
1	Fails to meet minimum fat requirements or over-fat carcasses with excessive fat deposits.
0	Extremely lean or extremely fat, wastey carcasses.

- * Carcasses must have adequate fat cover over the highlighted areas to receive maximum points.

2. - Saleable Meat Yield (35 points total)

- Saleable meat yield is the proportion of the carcass that is saleable as primal cuts and meat trimmings. It excludes bone and waste fat. High-yielding carcasses are preferred, and they are heavily muscled with a thin, even fat cover, but the fat depth and distribution must be adequate to meet quality requirements.

2.1 - Rib Fat Depth (15 points) is a good indicator of carcass yield with over-fat animals having lower yields. It is measured in millimetres at the quartering site (usually 10/11th or 12/13th rib). Optimum rib fat depth is the range set for each class (Market Category) in the specifications. To receive eating quality points, carcasses must meet the MSA minimum standard of 3mm at the quartering site.

2.2 - Eye Muscle Area (20 points) is a good indicator of the red meat content of the carcass. It is measured in square centimetres at the quartering site (10/11th or 12/13th rib) and points awarded according to the area measured in relation to the carcass weight. The larger the rib eye area in relation to the carcass weight the higher the points awarded.

3. - MSA Eating Quality (45 points, combined)

When Meat Standards Australia (MSA) grades a carcass, grading is based on the principles that:

1. The potential meat quality of an animal must be realised as far as possible by minimising stress between farm and slaughter, and by optimising chilling/electrical stimulation conditions during processing
2. There are known variable factors that affect the eating quality of individual muscles and adjustments are made for their effect.

The MSA Grading Model predicts eating quality of 40 muscles by 6 different cooking methods. It applies all our current knowledge about the factors affecting meat quality - which muscles they affect, by how much, and what interactions there are with other factors. These have been defined by a large research effort and more than 439 000 consumer product tests, involving some 62 800 consumers. In the Australian Beef Carcass Appraisal System the MSA eating quality score is the average predicted MSA eating quality score of 11 major primal cuts, cooked by their optimum method. Scores have been scaled to deliver a maximum of 45 points for eating quality. If carcasses fail to meet MSA minimum requirements, they are below the benchmark standard for high quality table beef and will not receive an eating quality score.

3.1 - Ultimate pH

pH is a measure of acidity / alkalinity levels of the meat. It is very important for keeping quality (shelf life) and is related to its cooking properties, colour and consumer acceptance.

After slaughter, the reserves of glycogen (energy) in the animals' muscles are converted to lactic acid, causing the pH to fall. As long as there is adequate glycogen present at slaughter, the pH will fall to within the normal range of 5.4 to 5.7. If there is not enough glycogen (due to stress or poor nutrition) then pH will remain above the acceptable limit of pH 5.70 and the meat is likely to be dark in colour, with poor keeping quality.

High pH meat is more difficult to cook to the right degree of doneness. At the same temperature as a cooked normal steak, it appears much rarer and if further cooked will lose its juices and become tough and dry.

- MSA rejects carcasses with pH over 5.70
- A slight downward adjustment is made to eating quality of all cuts from carcasses high in the acceptable 5.70 range.

To maintain high glycogen levels it is important to maintain a high level of nutrition and water prior to slaughter and minimise transport and handling stress.

Eating quality variables and their effect

In commercial grading, once cattle have been slaughtered and have met processor requirements for eligibility, the grader enters information about each carcass and the MSA Model predicts the eating quality of each cut (visit www.msagrading.com for further details). Predictions are scientifically based and validated by the extensive MSA consumer testing program.

Processor requirements include:

1. Meeting the MSA pH decline "window" - the rate of chilling and amount of electrical stimulation to optimise meat quality, determined by CRC research)
2. Cattle must be from a licensed producer / saleyard and must be accompanied by an MSA vendor declaration.
3. Direct consignment cattle must be killed the day after dispatch.
4. No mixing or drafting of different mobs of cattle.

Please note that the structure of some competitions may preclude the carcasses from commercial grading. In this case, the assessments are provided for education and feedback.

3.2 - Ossification (maturity) and Carcass Weight

Ossification score is a measure of physiological maturity of the beef carcass. Hot Standard Carcass Weight (HSCW) is used in conjunction with the ossification score to identify carcasses with greater weight for maturity - faster grown cattle have better eating quality.

As beef cattle mature the cartilage present around the bones of the spinal column gradually change into bone (ossify). The rate at which this occurs is reasonably predictable but is affected by factors such as sex and nutrition. The scale of ossification runs from 100 to 590.

Cuts from carcasses with lower ossification at the same weight are graded higher. Increasing ossification has a cut-by-cut effect with a high effect on some cuts (e.g. rump) and a low effect on others (e.g. oyster blade).

Ossification score is influenced by a number of other factors:

- Heifers tend to have higher ossification scores at the same age compared to steers
- Hormonal Growth Promotants (HGP) - treatment tends to increase ossification scores
- Nutritional setbacks or injury can increase ossification score, and this is not reversible.

Ossification score is assessed at three different locations on the sawn chine: the 5 sacral vertebrae (Tail), 6 Lumbar (back) and first 13 thoracic vertebrae (ribs).

3.3 - Tropical Breed Content (TBC) % and Hump Height

MSA data clearly shows that cattle with tropical breed content have a higher risk of delivering "unacceptable" beef to consumers. Research by the Beef CRC has found that these breeds do carry more genes associated with toughness, but if animals are well managed before slaughter and optimally processed, the differences are small. MSA research has determined that the major negative effect is toughening of the striploin, cube roll, tenderloin and oyster blade - all high value grilling cuts. The effect is smaller in the cuts with higher connective tissue such as brisket, topside, outside (silverside) and eye round.

The percentage of tropical breed content is taken into account by the grading model in combination with other factors. All cuts from 100% tropical breeds can still meet acceptable MSA consumer standards if the cattle are within age and fat limits and optimum eating quality interventions such as tenderstretch hanging, and ageing of cuts, are applied.

In crossbred cattle the hump height is an easily measured indicator of the percentage tropical breed content (TBC %). Animals of the same TBC can show different levels of visible traits such as hump, pizzelle and ear length. Analysis of MSA data has confirmed that when adjusted for carcass weight, hump height can also be used to estimate the 'tropical breed effect' on eating quality. Hump height is measured in increments of 5mm on the hump muscle (M. Rhomboideus) on the animals' neck.

The tropical breed content (TBC) is supplied by the producer on the MSA Vendor Declaration or as the breed description on the competition entry form. Values are expressed as a percentage: 0, 12, 18, 25, 38, 50, 75, 100.

The grading model adjusts hump height for carcass weight and ossification, then checks this against the declared TBC% and applies whichever is the greater of the two eating quality adjustments.

3.4 - MSA and AUS-MEAT Marbling Score

Marbling is the intramuscular fat (IMF), which appears as fine flecks within the muscle. It is deposited unevenly throughout the body, increasing through the carcass towards the neck and decreasing towards the tail. As cattle fatten, deposits accumulate in all the main fat depots (under the skin, around the internal organs, between the muscles and inside the muscles) but some cattle have the genetic ability to favour the development of marbling within the muscles.

To maximise marbling, cattle must be on good nutrition, at least during the finishing stage, and well finished.

MSA research associates increased marbling to higher eating quality scores for many grilling and roasting cuts. The effect is greatest in the loin cuts (cube roll and striploin) but it is possible to achieve good eating quality without visible marbling.

The MSA grader assesses marbling on the exposed rib eye (eye-muscle) at the quartering site.

AUS-MEAT marbling is assessed on a scale of 0 to 6, reported in tenths within each score, and is based on the total amount of marbling within the eye muscle.

An MSA-specific marbling score is also given on a scale of 100 to 1190, in increments of 10, with emphasis on its fineness and how it is distributed. This is thought to relate more closely to eating quality.

3.5 - Sex

There are small differences in eating quality between steers and heifers, other factors being equal. Although small, the effect of sex is rather complex, with heifers having a lower eating quality in some muscles and higher in others compared to steers.

The biological basis for the sex effect is not clear at this stage.

3.6 - Rib Fat

In ABCAS, Rib fat depth is primarily used as an indicator of saleable meat yield, but it also plays two roles in eating quality. Firstly, MSA requires a minimum of 3mm of subcutaneous fat at the quartering site with even fat distribution required over the entire body. This fat cover helps avoid eating quality problems caused by a rapid or irregular pattern of chilling (see fat distribution). Secondly, fatter carcasses have slightly improved eating quality, over and above that associated with marbling and in this case a small upward adjustment is made to the grilling cuts.

3.7 - Other variable factors affecting eating quality

There are other factors affecting eating quality in the MSA model, but most are usually constant across competition groups, or are outside the producer's control. The factors include:

3.7.1 - Hang Method

Tenderstretch hanging (from the pelvis) has a number of significant advantages over the traditional hanging from the Achilles tendon (AT or hock), including:

- Significant improvement in eating quality from most of the major high-priced cuts
- A reduced need for post-slaughter ageing to improve eating quality
- Significant improvement in eating quality of tropical breed types
- Counteracts the negative eating quality effects of hormonal growth promotants (HGP)

3.7.2 - Hormonal Growth Promotants (HGPs)

HGPs have a negative effect on eating quality, especially in the grilling cuts, and this effect will soon become part of the eating quality calculation in the MSA model.

3.7.3 - Milk Fed Vealer (MFV)

Unweaned calves produce beef with better eating quality compared to weaned calves of similar age and fatness. The MSA model adjusts scores for all cuts.

3.7.4 - Saleyards

The extra stress of saleyard handling compared to direct transport from farm to abattoir has been shown to reduce eating quality. The MSA model adjusts scores across the carcass.

3.7.5 - Ageing

Storing beef carcasses or vacuum-packed cuts for up to 21 days at 0-1°C improves tenderness. Improvement is greatest in AT hung carcasses, in those with higher tropical breed content and those treated with HGPs.

HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR SCORE

The feedback from your score sheet provides a great deal of information and can identify areas for future improvement. When preparing cattle for a competition, remember that high scores come from three main factors: Meeting the weight, fat, sex and dentition specifications of the class
High yield of saleable meat - optimum fat cover and heavy muscling
High eating quality - young and well nourished, not stressed, with marbling as a bonus

An "average" young animal will achieve a high score if it is fed well in the final six weeks, it is not excessively stressed in the 24 hours before slaughter and it meets the correct weight and fat specifications. Very high scores are possible by retaining these features and increasing saleable meat yield.

1. - Meeting market specifications

Key indicators: HSCW; sex; dentition; P8 fat depth; Meat colour; Fat colour.

Meeting the weight/fat target is the key starting point for achieving a high score. Achieving a weight and fat target is a complex combination of management and animal factors - frame size, muscling, genetics - and nutrition. Heavily muscled or large framed cattle require higher level of nutrition (and/or a longer time) to put on the same fat depth.

Optimal meat colour comes from cattle that are younger, have high levels of nutrition and low pre-slaughter stress (see meat quality).

Ideal fat colour (firm and white) results from feeding a grain-based ration. Young, grass-fed cattle produce a creamy-white fat colour, which is highly acceptable for most markets. Deeper yellow fat is undesirable and comes with older, grass-fed cattle. Some feeds can change the characteristics of fat, for example, large amounts of lupins can produce fat that is soft and greasy.

2. - Improving saleable meat yield

Key indicators: Eye-muscle area (EMA), rib fat depth.

"Yield" is the weight of saleable cuts as a percentage of carcass weight. It is not to be confused with dressing percentage which is the ratio of carcass to live weight. High-yielding carcasses are heavily muscled with optimum fat depth.

Among cattle meeting market specifications and minimum quality requirements for grading, the greatest potential to improve your score is by increasing yield. CRC research confirms that high yielding carcasses contain significantly more beef.

Ensure fat depth is within the optimum specifications - this will maximize your yield points with the particular animal. Overfat carcasses require more trimming, resulting in lower yield.

To increase EMA points, and therefore yield, after fat depth is optimized, in future you will need to select a more muscular animal. Consider these points:

Crossbreed, using high-yielding sire breeds

Select bulls for moderate frame and heavy muscling, either visually or with help from BREEDPLAN EBVs for higher yield and EMA

Heavily muscled cattle occur in most breeds, you don't have to use large European types

More muscular cattle usually put on less fat, especially if they are large framed - they may need more feed or longer preparation time to reach the target fat depth

Females from heavily muscled bulls are just as functional for breeding, as long as you avoid the extremes.

3. - Improving eating quality

Key indicators: pH, Ossification score, Tropical Breed Content, Hump height, Marbling, Meat colour

The above key indicators along with other factors such as hanging method and ageing combine to produce the final eating quality score. As some factors interact with others, it is not possible to allocate points independently to each factor.

A score of zero in this section means the carcass failed to meet one or more of the minimum requirements for grading. This does not mean the beef has no value, but does mean its value has been severely downgraded against the industry's minimum quality benchmark.

If you received zero in the eating quality section, use the individual feedback assessments to identify the reason. It may be pH over 5.7, meat colour over Chip 3, rib fat depth less than 3mm or inadequate fat distribution. Any of these factors will result in a complete loss of meat quality points, and should be given highest priority for correction in the future.

High pH or dark Meat colour are signs of pre-slaughter stress and low energy reserves at slaughter. Ensure as a minimum that nutrition is kept at a high level in the two weeks prior to slaughter, the animal has a quiet temperament and there is minimum handling and minimum time between farm and slaughter

Inadequate rib fat or fat distribution - feed a better quality ration with sufficient energy or feed for longer prior to slaughter

Once the carcass has met minimum grading requirements the best ways to maximize your eating quality score are:

Ensure optimum pH (5.4-5.6) and meat colour (1b to 1c) by building up energy reserves before slaughter (good nutrition, minimum stress, avoid mixing with strange cattle, minimise handling, minimum time from farm to slaughter)

Minimise the tropical breed content (hump height)

Do not use hormonal growth promotants (HGP's)

Increase marbling by using proven genetics (BREEDPLAN EBVs and GeneStar Marbling)

Ensure good growth, without setbacks, and a fat cover near the top of the optimum range

Aim for lower ossification score by faster growth for age

Apart from these animal factors, research by the Beef CRC and MSA has defined other significant factors that can be used to improve meat quality.

These are either included in MSA grading requirements or the variable factors in the meat quality calculation. They include:

Minimising pre-slaughter stress by conducting necessary pre-slaughter assessments well beforehand (say 2 weeks), and transporting cattle direct to the abattoir for slaughter without delay

Ensuring chilling and electrical stimulation are operated by the abattoir to optimum specifications

Hanging carcasses by tenderstretch to improve the eating quality of most major cuts and reduce the need for ageing

Ageing cuts after slaughter to increase tenderness.
